PERSONAL PROFILE

I am currently studying in Poland in the field of computer science, preparing for a professional career as an IT specialist. Alongside my studies, I already have two years of practical experience in web development.

I am an ambitious and highly motivated individual, constantly striving to improve my skills and expand my knowledge in modern technologies. I enjoy solving challenges, learning new tools, and applying innovative approaches to my work. My dedication and passion for programming drive me to create high-quality solutions that not only meet but exceed expectations.

I specialize in development using technologies like JavaScript, React, Next.js, and TypeScript. Additionally, I have experience with state management tools, including Redux and Zustand, which I effectively use to build scalable and maintainable applications.

Work experience

For the past two years, I have been consistently honing my skills by working on various personal projects. This hands-on experience allowed me to deepen my understanding of modern technologies and apply them to practical, real-world scenarios. Over this time, I focused on creating functional and responsive web applications, solving complex challenges, and continuously improving the quality and scalability of my code. During these two years, I developed projects using technologies such as JavaScript, React, Next.js, TypeScript, and state management tools like Redux and Zustand. This continuous practice not only strengthened my technical expertise but also enhanced my ability to work independently, manage tasks efficiently, and deliver high-quality results.
